Pre-dawn Task Force raid held on Dec. 7

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Operation Tora, Tora, shocked the Hancock County drug world Wednesday morning with a pre-dawn attack. The operation began at 4 a.m. with more than 40 officers coming to the county from one end to the other with 30 drug-related warrants.

Hancock County Drug Task Force director David Stepro, also Waveland Police Department's chief investigator said, "We started Operation Tora, Tora, at 4 a.m., and the operation was more successful than anticipated. Within three hours, officers made 29 arrests. We expect to make more as the day goes on."

Stepto acted as spokesman for the operation. Stepro said, "We arrested 25 of those we had warrants for, and in addition we picked up four others on charges ranging from weapons violations to having a controlled substance."

New propulsion program considered at Stennis

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
NASA will begin to work on an environmental impact study of the area surrounding Stennis for their Advanced Propulsion Technology Program.

Notification of the new program was presented at the Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting Monday after the supervisors passed a resolution to ask Senator Trent Lott and Congressman Gene Taylor to try to get some of the buffer zone property back for the original owners.

The Stennis Space Center buffer zone is five miles wide in each direction and consists of more than 125,000 acres of land.

This program is being considered at two locations, the site here in Hancock County and also at George C. Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

The new program is for the testing of engines to replace those currently used by NASA to put man in space. The testing would replace current testing at the Stennis Space Center, thus there would be no loss of jobs.

NASA will also be seeking public input on the program through a public hearing which will be held from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13 at Hancock High School.

According to NASA, the program will be, in many ways, similar to that of the Apollo Program testing.

The information provided to Beat 2 Supervisor Alton Kellar stated that the noise and air emissions would be "equal to or less than" that from the Apollo testing in the 1960's, if the program is funded by Congress.

The Huntsville site will be used for research and technology testing of alternative engines, while the Stennis site will be used for subsequent development, certification and qualification testing.

The fuels that will be used for propulsion of the engines are liquid hydrogen, refined kerosene and a combination of the two. Both will use liquid oxygen as the oxidizer.

The use of the refined kerosene is considered of moderate impact due to the large volume which is handled, stored and used, although an incident with this oil product is considered unlikely, according to NASA's informational packet on the project.

The packet also states that little or no environmental impact is expected except for noise, at Marshall only, and air emissions generated from the project.

New mayor

Mason to lead Waveland

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
Waveland wiped the slate and city hall clean Tuesday night in what was a tension-filled evening as candidates waited for the ballots to be counted.

There won't be any of the same old faces around city hall, there will be new ones.

Waveland businessman John Mason, owner of Mason's Firestone and Automotive, Inc. said he was "ecstatic" over his win.

Mason faced Democratic candidate Keith Mitchell, who is the city's building official and community development director.

Mason defeated Mitchell by an unofficial count of 996-932. Mason took every ward except Ward 3. He received 230 votes to Mitchell's 214 votes in Ward 1 and 252 votes to 204 votes for Mitchell in Ward 2.

In Ward 3, Mitchell received 313 votes and Mason received 285 and in Ward 4, Mason received 229 to Mitchell's 201 votes.

Mitchell said that he is happy for Mason and that he hopes the new mayor and board of alder-

Development plan proposed

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Consultants offered a comprehensive plan Tuesday for Bay St. Louis development over the next 25 years.

The draft document, subject to public hearings and City Council action, makes some major recommendations for new and improved roads and public facilities. It also calls for some land use changes, and preservation of historic properties within the city through new regulations.

Officials expect to set a workshop session on the document, and put it up for a public hearing after the holidays.

Continental Consultants of Jackson has been working on the plan for months, and will wrap up the package of recommendations with a capital improvements spending plan that follows the suggestions in the comprehensive development proposal.

Continental's Corrine Fox told City Council they should delay holding a public hearing on the overall plan until the firm's capital spending recommendations are completed.

There was little discussion of the specific development recommendations Tuesday, with council members saying they want to review the document before delving into its details.

In general, the document mirrors much of what citizens had urged be included in it during a series of public hearings last summer. One significant variation to that, however, is the consultants' call for expansion of the city's barn, maintenance and storage facilities within the same block where it is located.

Citizens residing near that complex, behind the fire and police department, had urged that their neighborhood be rid of the city's maintenance complex.

Consultants said the facilities are in a good central location to serve the city, and the storage and operations need to

Diamondhead casino planned

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
Conceptual plans have been approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for a casino located in Diamondhead.

Casino World, who has set up office in Diamondhead, is planning to put in a golf course, two casinos and a 450-room luxury hotel.

Corporate Financial Officer Sharon Petty said that, right now, the estimated cost of the project is more than $100 million.

The parent company of Casino World is Europa Cruises of Madeira Beach, Fla., but the company will revert to its shareholders once the project is completed, Petty said.

At the supervisors meeting, Chief Executive Officer of Casino World, Charles Reddien, told the board that they are seeking public input from the Diamondhead community and that all signs and basic scheme of design will fit with the Diamondhead area.

Supervisors Robert Peterson wanted to make sure that the project included landbased development.

Reddien told the supervisors that work would begin on the Animal shelter overflows

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
The Hancock County Animal Shelter is in desperate need of help.

The facility is over-crowded and animals will begin to be euthanized Wednesday after closing time.

"I don't have any choice, I wish that I did. We have twice as many dogs and cats as we normally do. We just don't have the facility for this many animals," Nancy Gallagher, director of the shelter, said.

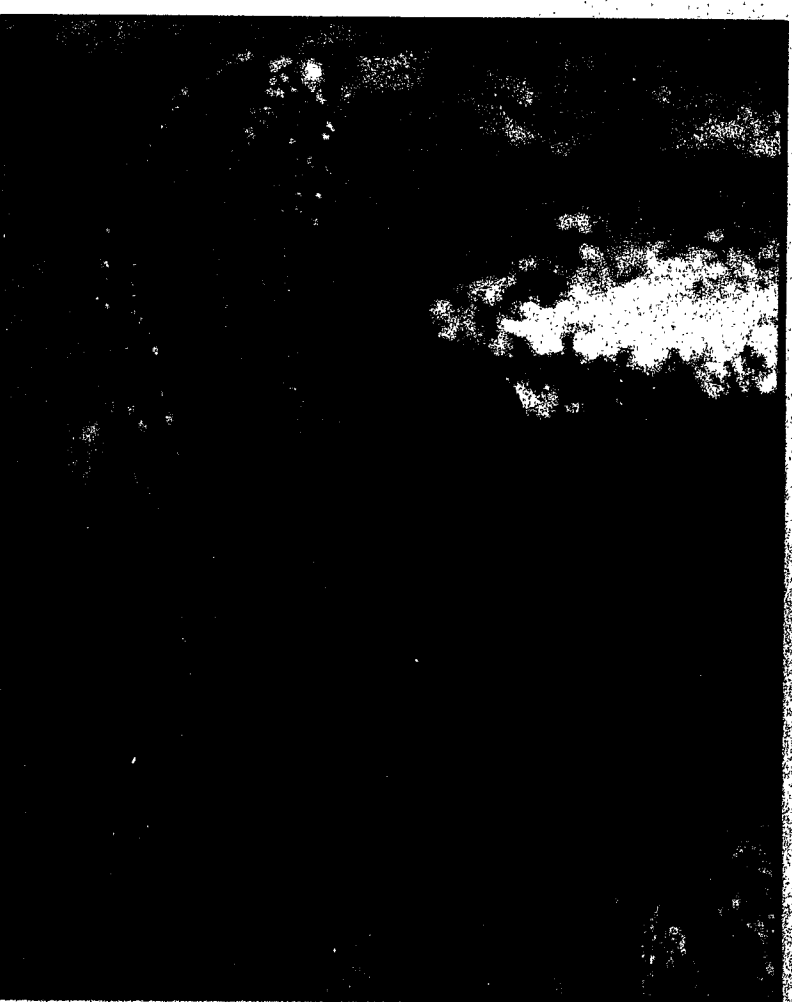

Animals usually aren't put to sleep at this shelter as long as they are healthy.

"We have a number of older animals here that you can tell have been well cared for. The owners just assume that they have gone off into the woods to die, but they haven't. A lot of times they are here," Gallagher said.

Gallagher said that the shelter currently has a large number of puppies and kittens.

"What a wonderful gift for your child and for the animal," she said.

For more information on adoption call Gallagher at 467-0230.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Christians take no credit

The mid-November Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum meeting in Bogor, Indonesia reached for an historic agreement on trade. Asia is the world's fastest growing economic region and U.S. trade there is three times as great as in Europe.

In President Clinton's words, the long-range goal of any Pacific Rim agreement is to get Asian markets "as open to our products as ours are to theirs."

To the delight of Bill Clinton and all the leaders from 17 other countries, they transcended native misgivings and endorsed a blueprint for a free-trade pact to eliminate trade barriers across the Pacific Rim over the next 25 years.

That was the good news. Asian-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) countries have a combined population of 2.2 billion and gross output of $12 trillion. Agreement between them can put a smile on the face of anyone interested in prosperity.

Then came the bad news. In the same breath, the newslines stated that the White House would put as positive a spin as possible on the Asian forum triumph, so as to enhance the image and foreign policy stature of President Clinton.

Bad news? You bet. It is the same bad news which has cursed both Democratic and Republican administrations from time immemorial. Taking the credit so selfishly and so ostentatiously does nothing but alienate those to be impressed. It always gives the revolting impression that the single purpose of good administration and good work is to assure the incumbent will have winning odds in any upcoming elections.

A plague on both your houses! Can't you Democrats and Republicans understand how repulsive both of your parties have been? And why have you been so repulsive? Because you are guilty of label fraud. You call yourselves public servants.

Self-servants is what you are, constantly seeking to absolve yourselves of blame and to credit yourselves with whatever turns out right. Your addiction of self-service galls the very voters whom you aim to court by your exploits.

Can you political ladies and gentlemen not understand the repulsiveness of what you do time after time? That plus your frequent deviousness is turning us all off to politics.

Why can't you just for once refrain from putting a political spin on the good things which you do? Can't you say even one time after a happy outcome: "The facts speak for themselves. You, the people, can draw your own conclusions."

Did you never read about the great Public Servant of all time who advised all of us, including mayors, governors, presidents, senators and representatives, to take no credit for any of the things we do?

"When you have done all you have been commanded," warns the Master, "say, 'We are unprofitable servants; we have done what we were obliged to do'" (Lk. 17: 10).

Frankly, that sounds like a joke in light of how most of our so-called public servants act. Sure, there is always a role for the loyal opposition to keep each party honest. Yet, the blaming and credit-taking are usually very unbalanced.

Perhaps the greatest misfortune is that co-called public servants, for all their disgusting qualities, mirror us all.

Who knows? Maybe we could change even politicians if we truly served our spouse, children, parents and everyone else.

be doubled in size immediately. They recommended the city acquire the block of land bounded by Booker, St. Francis and Sycamore streets and Old Spanish Trail.

An expanded facility could be located on that tract, they said, fenced and landscaped to buffer the activities from the rest of the neighborhood.

They also recommended that the sand, gravel and soil and debris that the city stores at the facility be relocated to the sewer lagoon area for material storage.

Other city facilities need to be expanded as well, the consultants said, calling for doubling the size of city administrative facilities, and additional space and facilities for the fire and police departments.

They also called for construction of a new middle school on a 41-acre tract north of the Bay High School, where new city recreational facilities also would be built.

The plan includes a major section on land uses for the future, keeping most of the existing residential areas as such and strengthening neighborhoods.

The plan primarily follows existing land use patterns which have been in place for more than 20 years.

Overall, the document describes future Bay St. Louis as a small town attractive to visitors and retirees, with a compact downtown with historic character.

But there are changes recommended in land use as well. The plan calls for locating a high technology business and vocational training campus on St. Charles Street, for instance. That street is integral in the proposal's overall transportation scheme as well.

Other changes recommended include locating future neighborhood commercial development on major and collector streets, and putting medium and high density residential developments along Booker and Union streets, and parts of Blue Meadow Road.

Several key transportation projects are recommended in the document, including creation of a traffic loop around the city's casino area.

Engman Avenue would be widened and become the sole access to future casino development, if any, in the vicinity of Casino Magic.

Joe's Bayou Road also would be widened, and extended, to connect with Green Meadow Road.

A new route would be created to connect Athletic Drive with Dunbar Avenue, connecting with Blue Meadow Road via Pine Street. And a new route, known as Keller/Labat Street, would be built between Drinkwater Boulevard at Highway 90 and the Old Spanish Trail.

Consultants said the city should consider the transportation recommendations when pondering significant proposals for development in the future.

The plan and maps which depict its major recommendations are available at City Hall Annex on Court Street.

Bay St. Louis and Highway Patrol police dogs.

Arrests were made at residences and on several at their place of employment.

"Since today is Pearl Harbor Day, that was the reason for using Operation Tora, Tora, as the name of the operation," Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

There was a three-month undercover investigation that preceded the operation, Stepro said.

Marijuana, cocaine, crack cocaine, LSD, valium, and ecstasy were among the drug charges for those arrested in the operation, officers said.

A veteran officer involved in the operation said, "It was the smoothest I have ever seen work," to which Peterson, Bay Chief Frank McNeil, Waveland Chief Jimmy Varnell and officers involved agreed.

The leaders of the three departments in Hancock County also indicated it would mean less drugs available on the streets for sale.

One vehicle, a sawed-off shotgun, electronic scales, several pipes and a number of pistols and guns were among the items seized, Stepro stated.

Stepro said some of those arrested were on parole, one was from Hattiesburg and another from Louisiana, and he would contact their parole officers later in the day.

The cases are to be handled by Task Force members Stepro, Matt Karl from the Sheriff's Office, and Terry Ely, of the Bay St. Police Department.

He also said the hotel would take three to six months longer to complete than the casinos.

The project originally included a letter of intent by Donald Trump, but that letter of intent has expired.

Petty said that they are looking at other operators, but as of now, they are "going it alone."

The site will be just off the Diamondhead exit, will parallel I-10, and be located completely in Hancock County. The golf course will be placed between residential areas and the hotel and casinos.

"So there will be a buffer and the residents won't have a casino in their backyards," Petty said.

testing of engines producing .08 million pounds of thrust and using refined kerosene as a total or partial fuel source, oil products and usage and unplanned events, such as large releases of refined kerosene, fire, explosion or other such incident.

No new employees are expected to be hired at this time.

The proposed test program would be supported mainly by technical and management personnel who would be reassigned from similar programs and would have no anticipated net increase of contractor and civil service workforce at either site.

The main focus of SSC will be to manage and conduct development, certification and qualification testing of the propulsion systems and components. Static test firing will be done from one of the stands at Stennis under various conditions to determine whether or not the engine is flight ready.

Through this process, NASA says, they will be able to find any defects or design flaws before the engines are used in actual flight.

QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The rain dampened the spirit of Christmas a bit last Saturday and caused the Red Ribbon Christmas Parade to be rescheduled for this coming Saturday morning.

The parade will use the same time schedule and route Saturday as was planned for last weekend, Cindy Vernon, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce executive director reports.

I know many of the younger residents were disappointed they did not have an opportunity to give Santa their special order. Santa should be around Saturday for them to give their special requests.

Christmas is fast approaching, so Santa needs to know your wishes.

A break in the weather on Sunday brought out a large crowd for Waveland's Festival of Lights on Coleman Avenue.

The trolley rides appeared to have been a big hit as the two trollies had a waiting line each time they loaded at the head of Coleman Avenue for a tour down Christmas Card Lane (Mollere and Lafite drives).

The refreshments and cookies, etc. by the Coleman Avenue merchants were also big hits.

Since there was so much rain on Saturday, the bonfire material was so waterlogged it had to be coaxed a bit by Waveland's Fire Department, but once it got going it was a spectacular display.

It just goes to show you what 'working together' by a city and merchants can do. I even heard many in the crowd Sunday night say they were already looking forward to visiting Coleman Avenue next year for the Festival of Lights.

Congratulations are in order for Father Charles Johnson upon being chosen as the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Citizens of the Year.

I could think of no one more deserving of the honor than Father J., the name he is known by by most folks of the area.

It was a delight to watch his expressions as the award was being presented, especially when he realized it was he Dave Treutel Jr., outgoing chamber president, was going to name.

I have known Father J. almost since he arrived in Bay St. Louis back in 1948, and there is no question about him being known as a 'visionary' because of his involvement with the establishment of Coast Episcopal Schools, not to mention his many other community involvements.

Once again, Father J., congratulations.

It was in deed an honor for me to present the chamber's Community Pride Award to Bob Occhi on behalf of Coast Electric Power Association.

Coast Electric has always been a leader in Hancock County with its commitment to community service, community development and community beautification.

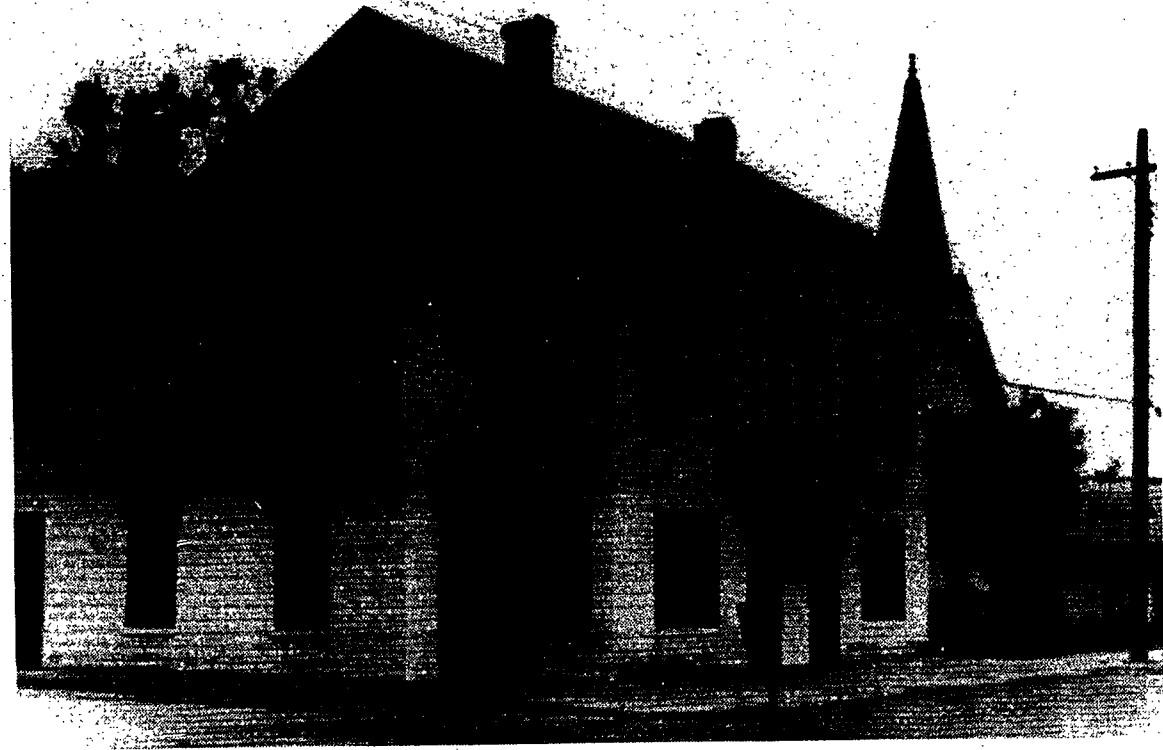

I guess I am a bit partial to the beautification efforts, since I have been involved with the chamber's beautification committee for so many years.

The grounds on Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis are always so immaculate, as there always seems to be someone working to insure they are kept that way.

To Bob Occhi and everyone association with Coast Electric, congratulations.

Sunday School

Along the way, the building was renovated and was changed to look like the bottom photo, as it was used for Sunday School classes by the Main Street United Methodist Church. The Methodist Church and Jerome's can be seen to the right of the building. The upstairs was used as the Maynard residence for many years. The photos were sent to Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society, by Lea Couch of San Antonio, Texas, a distant relative of the Maurigis. Mrs. Couch, formerly of New Orleans, in her letter to Gray, recalls her mother telling her about being a youngster and enjoying a stay in Bay St. Louis with her favorite Aunt Lena and her husband Gasper Maurigi. The Maurigi Shoe Shop moved to South Second St. and operated for many years a son, the late Manuel Maurigi.

Only a memory

This building, in photo circa 1910, at the corner of Main and Oak streets, Bay St. Louis, next to the Hancock County Courthouse, can be remembered by a few longtime residents like it looked in the top photo. Gasper Maurigi, in photo at right, Shoe Repair Shop was at right. In the early 1940's, Coast Electric Power Association opened its headquarters in the building. Coast Electric remained in the building for many years until it moved to Highway 90. A Model T Ford can be seen at left parked in front of the building. The property was owned for many years by the Kate Lobrano family and later by the Exmicious family. It is now owned by the Main Street United Methodist Church.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Taylor plans to push school prayer in 104th Congress

After trying for years to get prayer back to the forefront of national debate, I believe Congress is about to approve a strong prayer initiative once and for all.

Earlier this year, I was just as disappointed as many south Mississippians when Congress voted on several variations of school prayer amendments, just to see them watered down before their final passage. Next year, however, I think Congress is going to settle this dilemma once and for all.

Mandatory school prayer was banned in 1992 after the Supreme Court ruled that such government-sponsored devotional exercises violate the separation of church and state.

I wholeheartedly support voluntary prayer in our nation's schools. Just recently, I co-sponsored a bill that I think has the best chance of getting the votes needed to pass both the House and Senate. The measure, sponsored by Ernest Jim Istook, R-Okla., calls for a constitutional amendment that would allow non-denominational school prayer. Istook's measure, which I intend to push during the 104th Congress, states that nothing in the Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayer in public schools or other public institutions.

Our nation has many, many serious problems. The breakdown of the family unit, and a total lack of any sense of right or wrong by many in our society, are certainly among the most serious.

In a world where doing the wrong thing is often the ticket to fame and fortune, I think that our nation needs help in encouraging people to do the right thing. Obviously, the threat of punishment and imprisonment is not enough.

It is my hope that by allowing non-denominational prayer in school that more of our children will come to know that the Father of us all is not of this Earth. That the reason for the laws that I help to write, our sense of right and wrong, comes not from Washington but from our Creator.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran says new Republican Senate to 'hit the ground running'

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran said in Jackson Monday he expects the new Republican Senate will "hit the ground running" with its legislative agenda next month.

Cochran, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference and head of a task force to organize the GOP agenda for action when that body convenes in January, said he expected the first three items taken up would be Congressional accountability, unfunded mandates and a Constitutional amendment on balancing the budget.

The senator, speaking at a news conference in the Capital City, said the new Republican majority would then follow with other key issues, including term limits, tax reductions and spending cuts and strengthening defense.

He said the elections Nov. 8 gave Congress and the Republican majorities in both chambers "a new mandate" for action and that "we are prepared to meet that challenge" the next two years.

Senator Cochran also noted Mississippi's increased clout in the 104th Congress, with his reelection to the No. 3 leadership position, the election of his colleague, Sen. Trent Lott as majority whip, the No. 2 post, and the selection of Rep.-elect Roger Wicker as chairman of the GOP freshman class in the House.

The senator said one clear message from the Nov. 8 elections was that the American people want to control federal spending and regulation, and for Congress to act to "keep opportunity alive" without undue government interference.

He also hailed the U.S. Department of Interior Department's decision Monday to withdraw its proposal to list the Alabama sturgeon as an endangered species and the announcement the state of Mississippi was opening a trade office in Chile as a positive step to promote exports of state products and help create more jobs in Mississippi.

Cochran's remarks came prior to an address to the 10th annual science/education research conference, which attracted several hundred scientists, researchers and education officials from around the nation.

Sunday night he addressed the annual convention of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, briefing the farm group on the outlook for the 1995 Farm Bill which will be a major legislative item in the next Congress.

Windstorm pool insurance in state to see reduction

Commissioner of Insurance George Dale has reduced rates in the Mississippi Windstorm Underwriting Association 36 percent for residential and 10 percent for commercial property in the six Mississippi coastal counties.

The association, or commonly referred to as the wind pool, writes approximately 7,000 individual policies for windstorm and hail coverage on property located in Harrison, Hancock, Jackson, Pearl River, Stone and George counties.

All other coverages for fire, theft, liability, etc. are issued in a package policy sold by individual insurance companies.

Dale said, "Only 52 of the 168 companies writing property insurance in the state are writing coverage in these six counties. We are doing everything possible to increase the number of property insurance companies to voluntarily write in this area, and ultimately we hope that competition will help to reduce future rates."

The effective date of the reduction will depend upon the renewal date of the insured's policy. Only those policies issued through the Wind pool will receive this premium adjustment.

The Wind pool was created in the 1987 session of the Mississippi Legislature to guarantee that coastal residents would be able to purchase wind coverage. Similar beach plans are operational in Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Green loses battle

Cassie Green, who never gave up hope that a bone marrow transplant would save her life, died on Sunday at University Hospital in New Orleans. She was 20.

Green was in the final stages of acute lymphoblastic leukemia when a match was found through the American Bone Marrow Registry. The bone marrow transplant was performed on Nov. 18 but Green died from complications.

Old Waveland Board meets for last time

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
The Waveland Board of Aldermen met in what was an interesting meeting on election night.

It wasn't so much what was on the agenda, but what Alderman Stan Weidman had to say about it.

During the mayor's report, Stella Frilot asked the board to vote for pay raises for city employees.

Weidman objected, saying that the board had agreed not to do that and instead allow the new board and mayor to make the determination as to whether the city could afford the pay raises.

"What good is our word?" Weidman asked.

"I think that the people told you how good your word was in the election, Stanley," Frilot said.

The vote was Aldermen Bob Hubbard and Curtis Colson for and Weidman against the pay raise. Alderman Barbara Rapold was absent from the meeting.

Also discussed was the purchase of new telephone equipment for the Waveland Police Department.

Weidman questioned this expenditure, asking if all temporary measures were taken to keep from having to purchase the more than $9,000 phone system, which was classified as an emergency.

"It was an emergency," Frilot said. The police department's phone system was down for three days. We were relying on the 911 system and that went down, too. We have a letter from the repair people saying that the phone system had outlived its usefulness and was antiquated," Frilot said.

Frilot also told Weidman that the system was a used system when it was purchased more than 15 years ago.

The purchase of new telephone equipment for the police department was a budgeted item for the new fiscal year.

Weidman became upset when he learned that a poll vote had been taken and said that he was not contacted.

"For four years we have been trying to get a work phone number from you and you have not given us one. The only number that we have is your home phone number and you are never there," Frilot said.

Weidman called this statement erroneous.

The rest of the meeting went smoothly, with the board approving:

— The bills, with Weidman voting no.

— The introduction of ordinance extending the cable franchise agreement.

— The recommendations of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

— A street light request at 206 Tide St.

— Authorization to spread on the minutes the results of the Democratic runoff in Ward 2 for alderman.

DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

Red Ribbon Christmas parade rescheduled

Sunday, Dec. 11, 2:50 p.m. at the church. The church is inviting all to come see St. Nickolas and hear his story, sing Christmas carols, see Krackles the Clown and the Blessing of the Candy Canes. They ask that you please bring a gift for an underprivileged child if you can. State age and whether for boy or girl. With questions, call 255-9213.

D'HEAD SPCA

Helen Wise reminds us that Christmas is almost upon us, and they hope that folks will continue to support the SPCA by placing their name on your gift list.

During the holiday season it's easy to forget that our lost and strayed animals need good food, warm shelter and medical attention, and this takes funding, something shelters have very little of.

Warm blankets, towels, mats and good quality dog and cat food are always needed and can be picked up if you call 255-7680.

Get some exercise at the same time you volunteer to walk some of the animals.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

"Closer to our hearts be the Christmas spirit" says one of many greeting cards.

The Diamondhead Performing Arts Society brings to our community another Christmas concert Sunday, Dec. 11 at 7 p.m. at the country club featuring the Bay Area Chorale, the St. Rose de Lima Gospel Choir and the sounds of the Diamond-head Baptist Church Handbell Choir.

What a beautiful celebration of Christmas and the holidays at $12.50 adult and $9.50 for students.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

If instead of a gem or even a flower we should cast the gift of a loving thought into the heart of a friend; that would be giving as the angels give.

Reach out to a needy person, family, group, etc. Share and care during this holiday season.

MILITARY MENTIONS

PO1 DAY

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class McKinley Day, son of Zerita B. Day of Waveland, is currently halfway through a six-month deployment to the Persian Gulf with the guided missile frigate USS John L. Hall.

Day's ship recently took part in operations supporting international sanctions against Iraq. Arriving in the Northern Red Sea, Day was involved in intercepting ships heading to and from Iraq. USS John L. Hall also participated in the last joint boarding of a merchant vessel by U.N. Maritime Interception Forces, before going into the Persian Gulf.

Day is one of 300 crew members aboard the gas turbine-powered frigate, which is capable of speeds over 30 miles per hour. Earlier in the deployment, the 445-foot-long ship made port visits in Eritrea and Djibouti where Day and his shipmates volunteered to help renovate a local Red Cross hospital, and delivered clothing, medicine and supplies as part of the Project Handclasp effort.

The 1983 graduate of O. P. Walker Senior High School in New Orleans, joined the Navy in February 1984.

1994 YEAR IN REVIEW

President Jon Ritten of the Diamondhead Business and Professional Association has listed 21 programs and events that the group has done in 1994.

He states that "these are some of the things that have made such a tremendously successful year. They have tried to give each member their dues worth and feel they have accomplished their goal."

Ritten thanks the board of directors for their dedication and all who put so much into the association. "The association enjoys a reputation coastwide as a group that really gets things done, and that is because of you. Let's all work together to make 1995 even better."

The annual Christmas dinner will be Tuesday, Dec. 13 at the yacht club with cocktails from 5-6 p.m., roast beef dinner at 6 p.m. at $12.50 per person.
RSVP to Ann Mixon, 255-9188.
Congratulations to Jon Ritten for good leadership.

SANTA COMES TO OUR TOWN

To the Diamondhead Youth Organization, Parks and Playgrounds, etc., Roberta Lottes,
Carla Brigand, Lydia Jelinski, Denise Poulton and all the others who helped decorate, serve the children, congratulations for a job well done for "Breakfast with Santa" at the country club last Saturday morning.

More than 140 breakfasts of orange juice, pancakes, bacon and milk were served, and about 90 photos with Santa by photographer Ray Sawyer were taken. It was one great way to celebrate Christmas in the community for our children. And Bob, you make a wonderful Santa.

CONSUMER UPDATE

Should I take my lump?

By Jan Lukens, MBA, CFP
Consumer Money
Management Specialist

Q. I am 33 years old and about to change employers. I have $21,000 in my present employer's retirement fund. This money will be disbursed to me when I leave. I would like to use the money to pay off a portion of the $32,000 in credit card debt my family has accumulated. Is this a wise decision? My credit card payments are $960 per month and though I can make these payments without difficulty, I am not making much progress paying them off.

A. The decision you face is common with today's retirement plans. Quicker vesting and more employee contributions give us the advantage of taking retirement money when we leave. However, it leaves us with many decisions as we manage that money ourselves.

Initially and for the immediate future, paying off credit cards seems like a very wise move. Since your employer must withhold 20% for taxes before disbursing the retirement money to you, the lump-sum is reduced from $21,000 to $16,800. So if you use the entire lump sum after withholdings, you could lower your total credit card balance from $32,000 to $15,200.

In addition, you would lower monthly credit card payments from $960 per month to $456 per month. This is based upon your current minimum payment requirements of 3% of the outstanding balance.

However, because the money you are receiving comes from a tax-sheltered employer retirement plan, the tax consequences may be substantially greater than the 20% your employer is required to withhold. If your family is in a marginal tax bracket of 28% for federal and 5% for state, you will pay 33%, or $6,930 to taxes. Because you are under age 59½ and do not meet any of the exceptions applying to early withdrawal of retirement funds, you will also pay a 10% penalty for taking your lump. So, the net proceeds from the lump-sum may actually be only $11,970 after taxes and penalty.

If this severe tax bite does not daunt you, let's look further into your financial future. You could use your lump-sum to fund an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) by doing what is referred to as a direct rollover from the employer plan to IRA is used, no 20% withholding is required. If the IRA were to earn an average of 8% annually until you reached age 65, your retirement nest egg would then be worth $246,479. You pay taxes on any amounts withdrawn from the IRA, but amounts taken after age 59½ are not penalized for early withdrawal.

As nice as this retirement scenario sounds, I realize you still have the credit card debt to deal with. And interest is accumulating even faster than the retirement funds might grow.

Consider this suggestion. If minimum payments on the credit cards are not currently difficult, try budgeting an extra $200 per month toward credit card payments. By doing so credit cards will be paid off in 3 years. These "power payments" will also drastically reduce the total interest paid on the credit cards.

This article provides general financial information. Please consult your tax advisor before making specific financial decisions.

To The Voters Of Ward 1

I'd like to express my greatest appreciation for your vote of confidence in electing me your next Alderman.

I also wish the best to Ms Rappold, who, for the last 16 years, served Ward 1 to the best of her ability.

Now is the time for EVERYONE to put aside differences and work for what seemed to be a common theme in all of the campaigns ...

"What's Best For Waveland".

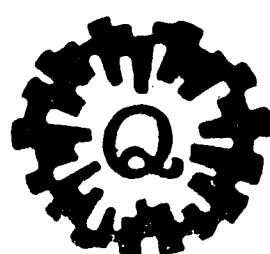

Thanks again and see you soon.

Cookbooks make excellent gifts

Looking for a gift idea? Books — particularly cookbooks — are always a popular choice.

The American Heart Association's local division suggests any of five books can make excellent gifts for those who want to prepare tasty, yet healthful meals.

The following American Heart Association books are available through local bookstores or by calling the publisher, Random House Inc. at 1-800-733-3000.

— American Heart Association Cookbook, 5th Edition: New and revised, this 656-page cookbook features more than 600 recipes, including hundreds of new dishes.

Each recipe, designed for healthy persons, contains a complete nutritional breakdown of total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, calories and more. It retails for $25. The 20th anniversary edition is also available in paperback ($13) and large print ($29.95).

— American Heart Association Low-Salt Cookbook: This 368-page cookbook is a complete guide to reducing sodium and fat in the diet. Written for persons concerned about high blood pressure, it features more than 170 recipes and two diet plans as well as important information on heart-healthy eating. It retails for $19.95. Available in paperback for $13.

— American Heart Association Low-Fat, Low-Cholesterol Cookbook: This 352-page cookbook is an essential guide for those concerned about their fat and cholesterol levels. It contains more than 200 flavorful, good-for-you recipes for all occasions. It retails for $21. Available in paperback for $13.

— American Heart Association Fat and Cholesterol Counter: This pocket sized reference for anyone who wants a more healthful diet contains more than 400 foods and their total fat, saturated fat, calories, cholesterol and sodium contents. It retails for $3.50 and is available in some grocery stores and drug stores.

— American Heart Association Kids' Cookbook: This 128-page cookbook is targeted to children ages 8-12 to use in preparing their favorite foods in a healthful way.

"Clearly, these cookbooks show that you can enjoy the taste of food even when it is good for you," says Dr. Clyde Hagood, president of the Mississippi Affiliate, American Heart Association and also a member of the Harrison County Board of Directors.

"Our main goal is to provide citizens with an array of foods that are a part of a healthful diet."

For additional nutrition information, contact the American Heart Association's Region VII office in Biloxi at 388-6938 or call 1-800-AHA-USA1.

The American Heart Association spent more than $226 million during fiscal year 1992-93 on research support, public and professional education and community programs. The AHA is the largest voluntary health organization fighting heart disease and stroke, which annually kill more than 923,000 Americans.

Magnolia Federal has 'Angel Trees'

The Coast Division of Magnolia Federal Bank will place Salvation Army "Angel Trees" in each of its 14 Coast offices this Christmas season.

The Angel Tree program, now in its 12th year, provides names of qualifying children for whom people can buy Christmas presents.

According to recent Salvation Army figures, there are approximately 2,000 qualifying angels here on the Coast for this year's program.

The Magnolia Federal staff invites customers, neighbors and friends to stop by one of its offices and select an angel and share the spirit of Christmas giving.

This would help the Salvation Army meet its goals for this very worthwhile program and help brighten the Christmas holidays for these many needy children in our local communities.

Meeting change

The regularly scheduled meeting will not be held at the Diamondhead Water and Sewer District on Dec. 26 due to the holidays. The next meeting will be Jan. 9.

NFL Forecast for Saturday, Sunday and Monday Dec. 10-12

*Dallas, 30—Cleveland, 18
(Saturday) The Cowboys beat the Browns 28-14 in 1991, the last time they met. We've said it before: Cleveland isn't as good—on offense or defense—as its record suggests. Dallas should win convincingly.

*N.Y. Jets, 21—Detroit 20
Three years ago the Lions were 34-20 winners over the Jets. Both teams are proven giant-killers (Dallas, Buffalo and Minnesota have lost to them), but N.Y. should survive a close one at home.

*Arizona, 17—Washington, 14
(Sunday) In D.C. two months ago, the Cardinals' fifth interception of Heath Shuler set up Todd Peterson's field goal in OT as Arizona beat the Redskins 19-16. Again the Cardinal defense will dominate.

*Atlanta, 27—New Orleans, 22
Coming back from 17 points down in their first matchup, the Saints beat the Falcons on a Morten Andersen field goal for the third time in their last five games, 33-32. Atlanta is out for blood.

*Buffalo, 28—Minnesota, 26
The Bills and Vikings haven't met since '88. The Bills simply must win, and the only place they can outplay both an offense and a defense that are better than theirs is at home in Rich Stadium.

*Green Bay, 23—Chicago, 16
A key game in the NFC Central. The Packers' defense shut the Bears down on Halloween night, 33-6. This one will be much closer, but G.B. will beat Chicago twice for the first time in five years.

*Houston, 20—Seattle, 15
Make no mistake about it, the Oilers are better than their record, and if they can find a way to contain Seahawk running back Chris Warren, they'll win handily. Houston beat Seattle 24-14 in '93.

*L.A. Raiders, 31—Denver, 24
In week three, the Raiders ran and threw at will against the Broncos, demolishing them 48-16. The Bronco defense still isn't stopping anything, so L.A. should win its sixth straight over Denver.

L.A. Rams, 22—Tampa Bay, 13
Finally, a team that's going to win on the road. The Rams have just enough rushing offense and more than enough defense to beat up on the Buccaneers. L.A. has won its last six games against T.B.

*New England, 21—Indianapolis, 19
Two weeks ago, Patriot QB Drew Bledsoe and his favorite tight end, Ben Coates, led N.E. past the Colts 12-10. If the Patriot defense can keep Marshall Faulk fenced in again, they'll win again.

*N.Y. Giants, 14—Cincinnati, 13
This is almost an even match. The Bengals have actually played better offense than the Giants this season and, believe it or not, N.Y. has never beaten Cincinnati. But we'll go with the upset.

*Pittsburgh, 23—Philadelphia, 27
The Eagles and Steelers have met only three times since '74, and the Eagles have won all three. This could be a thriller, between teams so closely matched that Three Rivers may be the difference.

San Francisco, 26—San Diego, 23
Anyone for an offensive showdown? That's what S.F.-S.D. looks like at first, but both defenses are standouts as well this year. Their last two games have been 49er blowouts, but this one won't be.

*Miami, 28—Kansas City, 21
(Monday) Even without Dan Marino, the Dolphins handled the Chiefs easily in '93, with Scott Mitchell leading them to a 30-10 win. Both passing offenses are strong, but Miami is better without the ball.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Man-o-man, there is all "kinda" stuff happening in the fishin' scene lately. All the coastal municipalities in Harrison County have requested a total ban on gill, trammel and entangling nets. The fifth Spotted Seatrout Workshop was just completed, and the number one spot, the number one spot along the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast for speckled trout was announced. The white trout, founders and reds are going on a feeding binge.

Being a typically aggravating Turtle I'm gonna tell ya' a little later where the number one spot is located because if I tell ya' now you are gonna just rush out and go fishing. This means you will probably not complete all of your "honey-do" stuff, which means some folks will be saying more than the usual bad stuff about the Turtle, which means Santa-Fisherman will put the Turtle on his bare hook list. The bare hook list means no fishing for a month. Now that is really bad.

Enough already. According to the date presented at the fifth Spotted Seatrout Workshop, held at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory Wednesday, Nov. 20, the number one spot where the most speckled trout were found is the Bay of St. Louis. How's 'bout them apples?

The speckled trout workshop was chaired by James "Tut" Warren, a fisheries biologist with the Gulf Coast Research Laboratories. "Tut" presented data they have been gathering for the past several years by doing Otolith studies.

It seems speckled trout have a bone in their ear called an otolith that grows rings for each year of life, just like a tree.

The age of trout can be roughly determined by counting the number of rings they have on their otolith.

Man, this is some heavy-duty stuff. Anyway, the chart showed the majority of the speckled trout only live about three and one-half years. Even though there were some trout that lived as long as 8 years, the otolith studies showed vast majority of trout only live about three and one-half years.

The relatively short life span seemed to indicate that the 14-inch size minimum catch limitation is not a real factor in the mortality of speckled trout. Most male trout do not live to reach 14 inches, and apparently a significant proportion of the female trout do not get past 16 inches. There are exceptions, of course.

A whole series of very interesting statistics were reported at the trout workshop. For example: They reported twice as many trout were found in the 1993/94 population as were found in the 1992 population; the largest trout showed up in late spring and late fall; the average size of the trout caught was 12 inches in '93 and 13 inches in '94; trout caught in gill nets have 100% mortality even if released. A gill net with a 3 and one-half inch mesh size catches trout as small as 11 inches. One of the biologists states that "gill netted trout don't live."

Did you know that Louisiana based its 12-inch size limit on the fact that male trout don't live much past 12 inches? Louisiana biologists apparently felt it was better to allow fishermen to catch some of these fish instead of allowing them to die and losing them as a resource.

The good thing about the ongoing spotted seatrout study is a whole bunch of really good scientific information is being compiled. Hopefully this will mean a better understanding of the speckled trout resource in the future, which should lead to better management.

All kinda stuff happening

Now then, what is happening in the Bay of St. Louis?

The mouth of the bayous on the east side of the Bay are where the specks are supposed to be ganging up big-time plenty. They are heavy-duty hungry for live shrimp and live minnows fished either 24 inches under a cork or bottom fishing with a slip sinker.

I received several reports of some nice catches of white trout around the hole by marker number 9, which is out in front of Casino Magic.

Reports are starting to come in of a few fairly large trout being caught trolling in the Jourdan River. As the weather gets cooler and the water gets colder the river should be a good producer for those folks who like to drag a bait behind their boat.

You might want to take notice that there is a hole about 40 feet deep around the mouth of the bayou that comes into the Jourdan River form the Diamondhead Yacht Club.

If you intend to fish the Bay of St. Louis, don't forget to try around the two bridges as some nice drum, reds, and trout are showing in this area.

In the Bayou Caddy area I am getting reports of schools of speckled trout moving around out in front of the bayous. You can spot these schools by looking for the diving birds. The birds are feeding on the schools of bait fish that the trout are ganging up on. If you see diving birds there are fish under them these days.

The hot issue these days seems to be the banning of gill nets. Florida recently banned all gill, trammel and entangling nets. Texas has banned them for years.

Incidentally, I am getting reports that since the ban in Texas the trout population has skyrocketed, and the average-size trout caught has gone up to 18 inches.

Alabama has banned trammel nets. Only Mississippi and Louisiana don't have a current ban on gill, trammel and entangling nets. I understand Louisiana has legislation to ban nets on the schedule for their upcoming legislative session.

Mississippi will have a very large population of gill nets if they are the only state along the entire Gulf Coast in which gill, trammel and entangling nets are still legal.

A lot of credit has to be given to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors on the gill net issue. They have been trying to have gill nets either banned, or their use severely restricted in Hancock County waters since at least 1991.

In their May term 1991, a resolution was moved by Supervisor Wilmer Seymour and seconded by Supervisor Robert Peterson, requesting BMR prohibit gill net fishing in certain areas of Hancock County.

There have been several additional resolutions by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to ban gill net fishing in Hancock County.

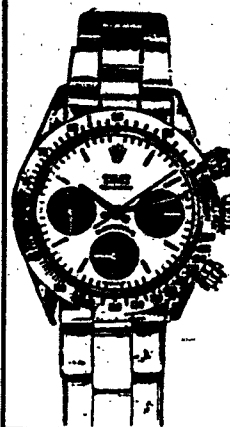

Unfortunately, BMR has ignored the wishes of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors in the past. It cannot be said that the supervisors have not tried hard to remove gill, trammel and entangling nets from their waters. But it looks like Harrison County will get rid of the nets first.

This week's wonderful wise words: Fishin' the Bay of St. Louis is where it's at right now.

DWF&P supports gill ban

The Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks (DWF&P) supports any efforts the Department of Marine Resources (DMR) can take to enact a ban on the use of gill nets, trammel nets or any kind of entanglement devices within state marine (salt) waters.

The DWF&P is joining a growing group of Coast cities who have passed resolutions supporting a proposed ban. Bay St. Louis, Long Beach, Gulfport, Biloxi and the Harrison County Board of Supervisors have all gone on record in support of the ban.

Texas, Georgia, South Carolina and California have banned the use of these nets in their waters. In November, Florida — by a wide majority of the popular vote — also banned these nets.

The DWF&P is concerned about both the impact these nets have on Mississippi's marine resources and the difficulties associated with enforcing the existing regulations.

The DWF&P Marine Enforcement Division is responsible for enforcement of all DMR regulations in coastal waters.

The Marine Division has arrested seven parties for gill net violations in the past 14 days. All seven violators were using gill nets to catch roe mullet. Six were arrested for netting in closed waters.

Enforcement of the present regulation is very difficult. The law states that DWF&P officers must catch violators with their nets in the water.

"Strengthening the existing regulations is an option, but we believe a complete ban would be the most effective means of solving the problem. Not only would the ban address the issue of resource protection, but it would eliminate the potential influx of netters from neighboring states to our waters," DWF&P spokesman James Walker said.

According to Terry Bakker, assistance chief of law enforcement, the recent ban in Florida is already having an effect in Mississippi.

"We've already seen an increase in out-of-state boats in our waters," Bakker said. "The market for roe mullet is so lucrative and the penalties are so low that the illegal netters are willing to risk getting caught in closed waters and regard the fines as just the cost of doing business."

Roe mullet are sought for their eggs which are considered a delicacy in Asian countries.

The DMR is holding a public hearing on the proposed ban on Dec. 7. The Commission on Marine Resources is scheduled to act on the proposal at its Dec. 19 meeting.

Moody wins Senior Series

Orville Moody shot a 5-under-par 67 to win the Senior Series at Windance Country Club, which was shortened to 18 holes after tournament officials determined the course to be unplayable. Moody said he was fortunate to be in the lead after the first round; it was just unfortunate about the weather.

Windance officials said the weather was a disappointment. Jim Craig, an assistant pro at Windance, said he was looking forward to watching some great golf.

"It's a shame when we work so hard to put something together and the weather takes control."
The Senior Series makes its next stop in Pensacola, Fla. The final event of the year will be at Perdido Bay Golf Club. Professionals Orville Moody, John Paul Cain, Terry Dill, Larry Laoretti and many more will compete for the $100,000 purse.

The participants competed in the weapons division and fared rather well due to the fact that they have had very little training time prior to the tourney. The club trains very hard and represents this area very well in out of state competitions.

In the Kata (prearranged sequence of movements) division:

First place - B.J. Ladner, Ashley Boehnel, Kevin Hill, Michelle Marroy, Harold Martin and Andrew Novarini.

Second place - Justin Necaise.

Third place - Joey Stutson, James Wadsworth, and Nick Arnold.

PRCC begins new marine biology class in Jan.

Students interested in marine life will have the opportunity to follow their hearts during spring semester at Pearl River Community College.

Among other new classes starting in January at PRCC is a marine biology course for non-majors. Lecture classes will meet at noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Laboratory classes will meet from 1 to 3 p.m.

"It will be a survey course of plant and animal groups in the marine environment," said PRCC biology instructor Ladeen Hubbell.

The class will include a study of oceans, marine ecology and economic factors affecting oceans such as the impact of pollution and fisheries.

Hubbell said field work is being considered. She said the class is significant because "the Gulf (of Mexico) is so close to us, and has such an impact on our lives."

Hubbell said she hopes to take students to the Gulf Coast and on boat trips.

The course is intended for non-majors and will not transfer to a senior college, said Hubbell, since it is on a sophomore level and most oceanography courses are offered on the junior level.

Other new courses offered at PRCC in the spring will be intro to geography and calligraphy. For information on courses or registration call PRCC at (601) 795-6801.

Rocks stung by Hornets

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaw basketball team lost its first Division 8 Class 4A game this year by falling to East Central 86-70 on December 2.

In the junior varsity game, SSC won 49-47. The JV Rocks battled back after being down 20-2 just inside of 4 minutes to go in the first period. The Rocks ended the first period down 20-9.

Mike Fenasci made a shot in the lane and was fouled with :04 seconds left in the game. This was the first lead of the game for the JV Rocks with 12 points and making 2 3-pointers. Jason Kirschenheuter added 10 points in the victory.

In an earlier matchup with the Long Beach Bearcats, the JV Rocks won 70-34. Matt Kopfler scored a career high 27 points and grabbed 13 rebounds. Chris McQueen also added 13 points off 3 3-pointers.

In varsity action, the Rocks fell to East Central 86-70. The Rocks were very slow out of the gate and never recovered. Jay Parker and Anthony Hollis each scored 31 points for the Hornets.

Brandon Benoit scored 27 points for the Rocks off 6 3-pointers. Benoit also had 3 assists and 2 steals. Vince Moran canned 11 points and David McGuinness added 9 points, all off three-pointers.

Steven Shockley grabbed 7 rebounds for the Rocks in the loss. Nate Middleton and Brian Thigpen each had 6 rebounds while Kelton Thompson had 5 assists and 2 steals.

The Rocks will have the SSC Extravaganza this Friday, December 9 in the Brother Peter Memorial Gymnasium against Biloxi. The seventh, eighth, ninth, junior varsity, and varsity boys basketball teams will all play.

With the loss, the Rocks fell to 6-2 on the season and 2-1 in the division.

For best sales price,
give your home some TLC

The single-family home may be the single biggest investment a couple or family will make. To improve your home's sales potential, know how to protect your investment, says a Mississippi State professor.

One of your best strategies is to give your home continuous care, advises Dr. Donald Epley, who holds the Robert W. Warren Chair of Real Estate at Mississippi State University. Don't wait until you decide to sell your house to remodel, paint or replace. Instead, keep your home in first-class condition at all times.

For those considering placing their homes on the market, Epley offers some tips for getting the best resale value:

Is the price right? Epley suggests that a real estate agent can help set an asking price that is appropriate for your house and your market.

What's the view from the street? Before you remodel inside, make sure your house ...someone gets too close will growl. I can't understand this behavior, especially because he is so good with us. Is this a behavior that can be changed in a dog?

Your dog may learn this fear, but it is a difficult fear to overcome. Judging by the way you found him, your dog probab-looks good outside as well. Give your home a fresh coat of paint or do some landscaping to improve "street appeal." If potential buyers like that they see outside, they're more likely to want to see what the interior offers.

Know where remodeling investments are likely to pay off. Consumers look for up-to-date fixtures in both the kitchen and the bath. Investments made here in adding the latest appliances and in removing signs of wear and tear will add to resale value.

Keep the consumer in mind. "No buyer wants to invest in a house that needs a lot of work done to it," Epley said. "To sell your house for the maximum price in the shortest time, you must keep your home adequately maintained."

ALL ABOUT CREATURES

puppy.
Puppies raised without any human contact before the age of 12 weeks usually will have an abnormal fear of people. The difficulty is identifying which types of people and environmental surroundings will cause fear.

The first step is to try and note the particular places and people that frighten your dog. Try to keep your dog away from these people or areas while he is going through the desensitization process.

Begin the training with people or objects that do not cause fear in your dog. First, have a practice session with a friendly person approaching the dog while you stand nearby ready to reward your dog for good behavior.

The friendly person should approach the dog, stopping about 10 feet away, and raise an arm toward the dog. If the dog shows no fear, you should reward him with a tidbit and praise. The friend should gradually move closer, again raising an arm, and you should reward the dog each time for good behavior.

After the dog is accustomed to this type of socialization and shows no fear, the process should be repeated gradually in other places and with people not so familiar to the dog. If the dog shows any fear of the person, no reward should be given.

The procedure should be repeated until the dog responds without fear. Your dog may show fear towards the person when he is standing. If so, ask the person to crouch down so as not to be as threatening.

It can take a few weeks and a great deal of repetition for the dog to gain confidence and not show fear. Try to make these exercises fun for your dog. Each session should last no more than half an hour.

Never use physical or verbal punishment during these training sessions. Be patient, and ask your veterinarian for more advice.

If you have questions concerning a pet's health, contact Dr. Wynn Jones, MSU/CVM, Box 9825, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Lady Hawks fall to Bearkittens

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Hancock High Hawks girls basketball team narrowly were defeated by the Long Beach Bearkittens 65-64 on Tuesday. Tish Williams, of Long Beach, scored on a layup with :04 seconds left to play. This was Long Beach's first win of the year.

Williams led the Bearkittens in the win with 22 points and 16 rebounds.

Hancock and Long Beach were in a deadlock at 14-14 after the first period. The Lady Hawks took a 26-24 lead into the intermission. Long Beach outscored the Hawks 17-10 in the third period to pull away for the win.

Chastity Head had a game high 26 points for the Lady Hawks.

Viki Laumbeier scored 20 points and dished out 12 assists in the win.

Positive attitude changes outlook on bad situations

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

"My parents embarrass me to death. Whenever I have to be seen with them, I wish I could become invisible. They talk and dress like hicks and drive a car that looks like a refugee from a junkyard. What makes it worse is they don't seem to know they're out of step."

"There are times I have to be seen with them. How can I get through it with the least amount of pain?"

If it's any consolation, lots of kids wish they could update their parents.

The news I have for you is probably not what you want to hear. You can't change your parents. The only thing you can change is your attitude about them.

Instead of seeing all the things that are wrong about your parents, concentrate on the things that are right about them.

I'm sure your parents love you and provide shelter, food and clothes for you. They're also interested in seeing you get an education. If they are like most parents, they always want what's best for you.

TEEN TALK

I remember when I was a teen feeling embarrassed when my dad made grammatical errors. I wanted him to speak correctly. After I became an adult, I realized how very special and talented my father was. He had overcome a lack of education and provided abundantly for his family and showered more love on me than I could deserve in 25 lifetimes. My dad didn't change, but my attitude toward him did.

When you find yourself feeling sorry you have such out-of-date parents, remember the majority of your friends feel the same way about theirs. At least you have company in your misery.

"My brother is five years younger than I am. He is genuine spoiled brat."

"What makes me so mad is my parents let him do whatever he wants to do whenever he wants to do it, and they have always been as hard as nails with me. When I try to talk with them about how obnoxious he is, they act like they don't know what I'm talking about. How can I make them see the light?"

I suggest you use your energy for projects that have a higher rate of success. Opening your parents' eyes about your brother has about the same probability as finding a pot of gold. Changing their parenting style would be even more remote.

See my answer to the previous question. Your attitude and your actions are all you can control.

Unless your bratty brother's behavior has a direct negative effect on you, let him and his behavior remain your parents' problem. When it does impact you, talk with your parents about the problem in specific terms and propose some solutions you think might work. Ask for their help in coping.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.
